"Well, he looked to me like a man rushing as hard as he could to avoid being late because he was afraid his firm COULD do without him," retorted Mrs. Rangie.

Mrs. Rangie thought it about time, anyway, to give Mrs. Jarr a little dig. Hecause, after all, the Jarra were no letter than the Rangies, and if Mrs. Jarr thought they were any better, similar they are a very dangerous operation by one of New Tork's highest priced and most fashionable surgeons. It will onet thought they make mistaken indeed!
